NOW IT'S MURDER

Six weeks after a house fire claimed the lives of a mother and her five children, detectives believe the blaze was started deliberately

POLICE are now treating the house fire which claimed the lives of six members of the same family as murder, the Star can reveal today.

Detectives investigating last month's blaze believe burglars who broke into the Shakoor family home in Barn Mead on the night of the tragedy may have started the fire deliberately.

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

Speaking exclusively to the Star yesterday (Wednesday), senior investigating officer Detective Superintendent Rob Vinson said: "We are now treating this as a murder investigation as information provided to us by fire investigators suggests the fire was started maliciously.

"We believe the person or persons who broke into Dr Shakoor's house before the fire may have been responsible."

DS Vinson appeared on the BBC's Crimewatch programme last night to appeal for information regarding the events leading up to the fire.

Independent charity Crimestoppers has also put up a £10,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of those responsible.

Police are still trying to trace Dr Shakoor's black Toshiba Satellite laptop, which was stolen from the lounge – the area where the fire is believed to have been started - during the break-in.

Officers have already retrieved the laptop's accompanying bag, pictured below, which was found by two teenagers after being dumped in bushes in a cut-through between St Michael's Close and Whitewaits 11 days after the fire.

"The missing laptop is key to the investigation, and we want to hear from anyone who may have been offered it second-hand to contact us," said DS Vinson.

"Likewise, anyone who saw the bag being dumped could provide us with vital clues to the identity of those responsible for the burglary."

Another line of inquiry is focusing on a group of four teenagers aged 16-19 who were seen outside the house around the Fury at Gilden Way homes go-ahead, but Secretary of State tells the Star...

on't plame me

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Council is taking legal advice after plans to build more than 1,000 new homes on a swathe of farmland bordering Old Harlow were approved by the Govern-

The authority is currently exploring ways to fight a decision by the Department for Communities and Local Government to uphold an appeal lodged by developers Barrat, Persimmon and Taylor Wimpey against the non-determination of a planning application for the sprawling Gilden Way project.

In a letter outlining the reasons for approving the scheme – which could also include a new school, shops and community facilities – Secretary of State Eric Pickles said there was a "pressing need" for housing in Harlow and claimed the proposed development was sustainable.

But yesterday (Wednesday), Mr Pickles contacted the Star to say he had not been directly involved in the decision – and in the past had even spoken out against the plans.
"I want to make it absolutely clear that I have played no part whatsoever in the decision to uphold the appeal," he said. "Although the letter has been signed by me, in the interests of probity I had specifically asked not to be involved in the process as I had previously campaigned against the development alongside [Harlow MP] Robert

"This decision was in fact made on planning grounds as a result of a quasi-judicial process involving the Planning Inspectorate and ministers from the Department for Communities and Local Government."

Earlier this week council leader Mark Wilkinson described the decision as a "smack in the face for localism" and said the authority would be exploring the possibility of purpose individual regime. suing a judicial review

'I am extremely disappointed and question whether the Secretary of State has actually considered any of the views of local people and their concerns about infrastructure,' he said. "This decision sends out a confusing message from the Government on how wants local people to have a greater say in planning decisions.

"I think it is right we now take time to consider the report and seek independent legal advice before we decide on our next move

The council fought the appeal lodged by the development consortium at a public inquiry in July, claiming the planning application was premature in advance of an impending Governmental review of local planning blueprints.

It said it shared local residents' concerns over increased traffic, inadequate drainage and the scheme's potential to encroach onto Green Belt land.

The eight-day hearing at Harlow Civic Centre also heard representations from mem-bers of Harlow Civic Society, whose chairman - former Harlow MP Stan Newens - has spearheaded a residents' campaign against Speaking to the Star this week, he said: "This makes an absolute mockery of all the empty promises over the Localism Bill and handing power over local planning decisions to local people.

"Not one person locally stood up in favour of this development, but the Government has completely ignored the wishes of the only people that should matter - Harlow residents.

Once again it has been shown that money talks. The developers stand to make an absolute fortune out of the misery of others; it's an absolute disgrace."

The decision has also been condemned by Mr Halfon, who has written to both the Prime Minister and Planning Minister Nick Boles to register his disappointment.

"This is an absolutely shocking decision that completely ignores the views and concerns of Harlow residents," he said. "This quasi-judicial process has clearly not addressed the enormous impact such a large development will have on the town's infrastructure and the huge environmental problems it will create.

"In my view this decision has seriously undermined the Localism Act and damaged public confidence in the planning process

Suzy Stride, Labour's parliamentary hopeful for Harlow, said the Government had shown itself to be out-of-touch with the views of local residents.

"People in Harlow were united against this development and although we need new homes for the town, there are far better places to build them," she said.

"This just shows how out-of-touch the Tories are and what the Tory-led Government really feels about local communities and South Anglia is part of Circle, one of the UK's largest providers of affordable housing. South Anglia owns and manages around 7,000 homes in 22 local authorities including Luton, Hertfordshire, Essex, Barking and Dagenham.

Independent Board Member

No Remuneration, Expenses Paid

The South Anglia Board is made up of 12 members: seven independent, two residents and three nominated by local authorities.

As a Board member, you will be helping us to achieve our vision of being a nationally recognised, excellent provider of affordable housing services. You will ensure that our services are designed in partnership with residents to build communities where people want to live and work.

You will ideally have experience in social housing estate management or in finance and a passion for service excellence. You will have the opportunity to make a difference in your local community, to take part in business planning, the strategy of the organisation and to develop financial awareness.

We anticipate a minimum commitment of six afternoon or evening meetings a year in Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, with additional discussion and training sessions throughout the year.

Closing date: 10 December 2012.

For more information visit www.circle.org.uk/south-anglia or call or email Steve Robertson on 020 7288 4170 or stephen.robertson@circle.org.uk

We welcome applications from people with disabilities and would particularly encourage applications from women and/or BME applicants as both are currently under-represented on the Board.

Fear of influx of council tenants from London boroughs

COUNCIL chiefs in Harlow have called on the Government to review its proposed benefit reforms to quash fears that homes in the town could be snapped up by London councils unable to provide affordable housing for homeless tenants.

Waltham Forest Council is already renting two privately-owned houses in the town to use as temporary accommodation and Harlow Council has warned other authorities may follow suit due to welfare cuts and high London

It has now urged the Government to review benefit reforms and ease the financial restrictions placed on local authorities to prevent the town's shortage of affordable housing from getting worse.

Rod Truan, Harlow Council's portfolio holder for housing, said: "We have sympathy for London councils who find it hard to get enough affordable housing for their residents and we also have sympathy for those families who sympathy for those families who are being forced to move away from their communities.

"But if more private properties are used in Harlow by London councils, this would mean fewer private homes for rent or to buy in the town, adding to an already desperate shortage.

"We are powerless to do anything about any other council purchasing or renting private property in the town so the ball is in the Government's court. We will be writing to ministers to urge them to recognise this problem and take action."

But Harlow MP Robert Halfon said the Government had already taken steps to prevent people from outside the town moving into council-owned homes in Harlow and accused the authority of shirking its responsibilities. "Today, with a Conservative-led Government, we now have Harlow housing for Harlow people," he said. "This means that only local residents can get onto the council waiting list, something which never happened in 13 years of

"If other councils are buying up Harlow properties this should be looked at seriously. But most local authorities in London are Labourrun so it seems a bit rich for the Harlow Labour Party to shrug their shoulders and say that nothing can be done about this."

£15k donation for breast cancer research unit

THE fight against breast cancer has been given a major boost thanks to a generous donation to Princess Alexandra Hospital from a Hertfordshire engineering company. An additional research nurse for the breast cancer unit at PAH and St Margaret's Hospital in Epping will be funded with the £15,000 donation from JCA.

The money was presented to Ashraf Patel, associate specialist in breast surgery at PAH, by JCA group chairman lan Jackson. Mr Patel said: "I am thrilled by JCA's generosity. It is only through fundraising and donations like this that we can continue our work to eradicate breast cancer."

The breast unit, which currently has four research nurses, serves a population of more than 300,000 people and deals with over 250 new cases diagnosed each year. Mr Patel said: "Having a fifth research sister means we can work even harder and run even more clinical trials, giving us more chances of finding effective new treatments."

Fundraisers have collected more than £1m towards breast cancer clinical trials, the most effective way to research breast cancer prevention.

Get yourself a snap with Snowman Sid

THERE will be no snow reason not to get in the festive mood when a cheeky visitor comes to Harlow in December.

On the last two Saturdays before Christmas, Sid the Snowman will be heading to the town centre to help former Star reporter Vicky Lane (26) raise money for Help the Hospices – the charity she will be supporting whne she runs in next year's London Marathom.

Sid will be setting up a festive photobooth service to help residents prepare seasonal snaps to send in cards or upload to social networking profiles.

"There are few who love Christmas as much as Sid," said Vicky, of Amberry Court, Harlow. "He is always trying to spread his Christmas joy so when he suggested setting up a festive photobooth in the town centre I thought why not?

"He was so excited that he went straight out and bought extra Christmas accessories for fellow posers to wear to ensure their pictures are as festive as possible. It really should make an excellent snap to send to grandma or show off on Facebook."

and take part in the St Clare Hospice Santa Run this year, will be asking for a suggested £1 donation to have their picture taken with him. Vicky said he also hoped to extend his services to office Christmas parties.

"We are hoping companies in Harlow will want to make their events extra special this year by inviting Sid to attend," said Vicky. "For a donation to the charity, Sid will pose for photos and join in with Christmas activities. He'll even show off his Gangnam Style dance if he's asked nicely!"

She added: "I am hoping that everyone has a bit of fun hanging out with Sid whilst helping to raise money for a fantastic cause

"Help the Hospices do an incredible job supporting hospice care throughout the UK. At a time when such vital facilities are constantly having their funding cut, Help the Hospices helps to make up those short falls to ensure they can continue giving people that much-needed bit of comfort at such a devastating time."

Sid and Vicky will be outside Boots in The High this afternoon (Thursday) for the Christmas lights switch-on and in the foyer at Asda in the Water Gardens on December 15 and 22.

Christmas fair in aid of epilespy research

A CHRISTMAS gift fair is being held in Sawbridgeworth on Saturday to raise money for Epilepsy Research UK.

The event it being organised by Nicki Walker, of Longbanks, Harlow, as part of a series of fundraisers she has held since the death of her sister, Tania Knight, in 2003. Tania passed away after suffering a seizure at home just 18 months after she got married. She was just 37.

The money raised will be donated to the Tania Knight Memorial Fund, which supports Epilepsy Research UK's research into the causes, treatment and prevention of epilepsy.

Nicki, a 45-year-old marketing manager, said: "Tania was diagnosed when she was 26 but it was controlled. I had no idea you could die from it so when she passed away it was very traumatic.

"It really affected our family and we've been trying to raise money and awareness ever since. She was such a happy-go-lucky person and always had a hug and a smile to share."

About 30 stallholders will be selling their handcrafted wares at the Memorial Hall in The Forebury from 10am to 4.30pm. There will also be a raffle and homemade cakes and refreshments. Entry costs £1 (children free).

Tuck shop raises funds for St Clare

A HARLOW-based pen manufacturer has launched a new tuck shop to raise money for St Clare Hospice.

Pen manufacturer Senator has opened an onsite stall selling healthy foods, treats and drinks at its headquarters in Stadium Way after signing up to the hospice's £50 Push Challenge.

The business initiative sees the hospice giving £50 to local companies and organisations which they then invest in new fundraising strategies.

Senator's longest serving employee, Ron Hawksbee, suggested approaching local supermarkets for help. Tesco at Church Langley and Lidl in Staple Tye have both donated food and drink to the cause.

The shop has proved to be a success and has raised hundred of pounds since its opening. A Senator spokesman said: "The entire team has been involved in the push for St Clare Hospice and we are delighted with the amount raised so far."

Council fined after special needs pupil almost drowns in school's swim pool

ESSEX County Council has been fined £20,000 and ordered to pay £10,000 in costs after a young boy with special needs nearly drowned in the swimming pool at his school in Harlow.

Magistrates were told that health and safety arrangements at Harlow Fields School and College were "severely lacking" at the time of the incident in March of last year.

March of last year.

The nine-year-old boy was only saved from drowning when a teacher who was in the pool saw the boy's shadow among the inflatables and pulled him out. He was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital and has since made a full recovery.

He added: "The boy was saved by the prompt and efficient efforts by staff in etting him out of the pool when he had disappeared from view.

Mr Travis said the council had taken the incident very seriously and had worked with the Health and Safety Executive to make changes "not just at swimming pools but across the board".

Chairman of the bench Michael errier said: "This was an incident in which a young boy nearly lost his life in an Essex County Council swimming pool. That life was saved due to prompt action by others, but health and safety was barely adequate."

because the case is currently the subject of civil proceedings.

A council spokesman said after the case: "We are deeply sorry and regretful for the incident that occurred at the

Panto performers and TOWIE stars to light up town

THE countdown to Christmas officially begins in Harlow today (Thursday) as festive lights are turned on across the town.

This year's big switch-on will feature three staggered events, starting in Market Square at 3pm with a free art and craft workshop where voungsters can learn how to make their own

The cast of this year's Playhouse panto – Jack and the Beanstalk – will then get the party started by switching on the lights in Broad Walk at around 4.15pm.

Then it's over to the Harvey Centre to meet

Santa and his reindeer before the shopping centre's lights are turned on by James Argent and Gemma Collins, stars of ITV2 reality series The Only Way Is Essex, at 5.30pm.

The fun continues in The Water Gardens, where youngsters can meet and feed some very special guests as the complex welcomes a group of penguins to town.

There will be live performances from local dance group Hip Hop Pop, the St Mark's West Essex Catholic School choir and boyband FTW before the lights are switched on at 7pm.

The event also marks the return of late-night shopping to the town, with stores in The Water Gardens, Harvey Centre and The High opening late every Thursday in the run-up to Christmas.

Fire in thatched roof

Auguste Rodin's Eve was removed from its plinth in The Water Gardens on Monday before being taken to the Henry Moore Foundation in Hertfordshire, where it will form part of a new exhibition exploring the French sculptor's influence on the Yorkshireborn artist.

The bronze cast, created by Rodin in 1882, was acquired by Harlow Art Trust from the Musee Rodin in 1960.

A companion piece to Adam, it was originally intended to form the centrepiece of sculptural project The Gates Of Hell, which remained unfinished at the time of Rodin's death in A spokesperson for Harlow Art Trust said: "We are delighted to be able to lend Eve to this important exhibition.

"Eve, one of Rodin's most iconic and well known sculptures, will be sited alongside Rodin's Adam as well as Moore sculptures that also examine the human form. We urge people to go and see Eve in new surroundings."

Harlow Council deputy leader Jean Clark added: "We are fortunate in Harlow to have so many wonderful and valuable sculptures but we will all miss Eve. one of our most beautiful and elegant works, and look forward to her return.

"We welcome, of course in the meantime, another important Henry Moore sculpture."

Eve is the second scultpure to leave the town this year. In March Henry Moore's Family Group was removed from its position in the Civic Centre and taken to the Victoria & Albert Museum in London where it featured in an exhibition on modern design.

The annual event, which was cohosted by new headteacher Tony Evans and Ms Wafula-Strike, saw final year students rewarded for their achievements throughout the school year.

Winners included Ellie Matthews and Rhys Davis, who received the Headteacher's Awards for their hard work and dedication as head girl and head boy

Vygis Samulis was presented with the Outstanding Attendance Award for never missing a day of school in five years, while plucky Zahra Hemingway picked up the Endeavour Award after overcoming adversity to excel in her schoolwork.

A school spokesman said: "The awards evening was a chance for students to celebrate their success in a formal graduation ceremony.

"We were pleased to welcome Anne Wafula-Strike as guest speaker. Her moving speech not only inspired the students, but inspired lots of parents too."

KIDDI CARU Tots and staff are jumping for joy after the Harlow day nursery received its third 'outstanding' Ofsted rating in a row. The Kiln Lane pre-school once again achieved the highest possible ratings for early years provision, children's wellbeing and the effectiveness of its managers and leadership.

The report also praised the nursery's variety of "rich and imaginative experiences" for toddlers in its care and the expert knowledge, warmth and approachability of its staff.

Nursery manager Kelly Walker-Reid said: "Our aim at all times is to provide the highest standard of care to give the children who come here the very best start in life, so to have achieved an oustanding Ofsted rating again is brilliant.

"I'm very proud of the team here and they should be extremely proud of themselves, too.

"They all do a fantastic job and without them the nursery would not be able to provide such a wonderful offering for the children and their parents."

SAINT NICHOLAS SCHOOL

There was cause for celebration at the Old Harlow school after it received a glowing report following a recent schools inspection.

The Independent Schools Inspectorate, a branch of the Office for Standards in Education, reported the school had improved in all areas since officers last visited in November 2008.

They gave the school, in Hobbs Cross Road, an 'excellent' grading. Headteacher Keith Knight said: "We are absolutely delighted with the report. We have improved in every criteria and our strong team have worked very hard to achieve this result.

"We are extremely pleased with the particular mention of our excellent pastoral care and the strength of our children in their manners, behaviour and learning."

Mr Knight added: "The nice thing is that the children came out so well. Older pupils were also given a 'minireport' so that they were fully aware of how well they were doing."

BURNT MILL ACADEMY Forward-thinking 12-year-olds quizzed employment professionals to find out more about their future career choices.

Year 8 pupils at the First Avenue school took part in a careers day to help them decide which GCSE subjects they should study.

The event began with an introduction to different professions and visits from local businesspeople, before students took part in question-and-answer sessions with professionals including a journalist and a project manager.

The GCSE options process is usually started in Year 9, but younger students are now being taught how important their school years are if they want to succeed in the working world.

Assistant headteacher Paul Williams said: "By bringing everything forward by a year it gives the students an opportunity for deeper learning and to push for higher grades.

"In addition, it gives students a purpose early on for coming to school and working towards their goals."

The Harlow store is one of 41 across the UK to close this month.

The remaining 195 shops in the chain continue to trade as normal and the 20-plus staff at the Harlow branch have been told they could yet be redeployed. But joint administrator Chris Farrington said some redundancies were inevitable.

"Discussions continue to take place with parties who have expressed interest in parts of the business," he said. "However, it is unfortunately necessary to begin a store clo-sure programme and to scale back the com-

"While we will continue to do all we can to preserve jobs, we are working hard to put in place comprehensive support to help those employees who are made redundant during the administration.

"This support includes connecting people to prospective employers who are keen to offer roles to ex-Comet staff, and providing assistance and workshops to help with job hunting skills, such as CV and cover letter writing and interview skills, to enhance their chances of securing new employment.

Mr Farrington added: "We are very grate-

MP showed his true colours in the vote on fuel tax hike

SIR, So Robert Halfon has the perfect opportunity in Parliament to express the view on fuel tax he has long promoted in the Star and in the House of Commons. Instead he goes slavishly into the 'no lobby in the expectation that George Osborne will shave a penny off the

Throughout the year we have seen him pop up like a hammer in a pianoforte to play his one note threnody on the theme of the damage this increase will do to the less well off and to businesses, but when it comes to a vote where he could be counted he's 'frit', as a certain party hero would

If Mr Halfon is so keen on helping the poor, why the silence at the equally large hike in VAT? When his party 'froze' council tax – a considerable saving for those in higher band properties – why was he not pointing out that those who are worst off in Harlow, who neither qualify for benefits nor get living wages, would be paying an extra eight per cent for their council house rent to pay for it in the then Tory administration - a basic increase of £348 on a two-bed household?

But then he wouldn't have much support among the Parliamentary party whose ruling wing consider it's the duty of the least well off to pay for their economic policies, just as they paid in wars with their lives.

I am very sympathetic to Mr Halfon's charitable work but he must begin to see the Government is creating wholesale poverty, creating a two-tier health service and a three-tier education service and, at the time as they are implementing policies which will start to reverse the current downward trend in crime, are slashing the public's police protection.

The point of charities and voluntary organisations is that they cover areas the health service or social services can't economically cover. The 'Big Society' which he also supports, is to take us back to an era when whist drives were supposed to cover everything from hospital facilities to mending the drains.

What people must see when Mr Halfon poses with another charitable cause is a man who represents the party which wants to wreck the home fit for heroes which our people were promised after the two world wars. Perhaps this should put the 1p on petrol in its real context.

Fate of Gilden Way was Town needs more houses sealed many years ago to reduce waiting lists SIR, The decision to allow the Gilden Way project was actually taken many years ago

SIR, All the people who are now so violently against the Gilden Way development probably live in houses that were built on green fields in the 1950s. It's NIMBYism.

Harlow needs houses. How else will our young people be able to afford to live somewhere? Harlow's waiting list for housing is long enough already.

Advice service is used by many hardworking people

SIR, In response to Steven Howell, not everyone who uses the Harlow Welfare Rights & Advice Service is feckless and workshy (Letters, November 15).

Many decent hardworking people including myself have used this service, probably even more so with the increasing cost of living as a result of the banks and a Government which lets them get away with

The present Government and its regime of tax and cuts has put more decent and respectable people in financial difficulty, making this service – and the help and support it offers – one which many people appreciate.

To those people this closure will be a devastating blow The sheer numbers of people using it has put the budget under further strain and it is for this purpose alone that Harlow Council deemed this service unsustainable and therefore pulled

Closing the service means that hundreds of people effectively lose their voice. Many respectable and hardworking people will not share Mr Howell's views on this

> Jason Denton Abbeydale Close, Harlow

Other organisations can live within their means

SIR, I think it is time the chairman of Harlow Welfare Rights and Advice came clean to his supporters and the public on the true financial position of his organisation.

Every year for the past four years they have spent more money than they received, a total of £132,242. At the end of March 2011 – their last published accounts – they had reserves of only £27,911, less than one month's turnover. Spending at this rate is clearly not sustainable.

It is difficult to understand the claim that the charity is undergoing a cashflow problem. The Labour-controlled council pays their grant six months in advance. It also pays the salaries for Advice Centre staff, but only invoicing once every three months, another cashflow benefit.

Harlow Council is also their landlord but charging almost nil rent, a huge benefit many organisations wish they had.

To any reasonable person the council is already bending over backwards to be helpful at taxpayers' expense, so it is difficult to see how the chairman can complain. Is there not some irony in an organisation providing debt advice failing to manage its own finances?

And how is it that other advice organisations can live within their means and continue providing services?

What a waste of road salt

SIR, I was most puzzled to see the gritter lorries spreading salt on the roads round Harlow at 11.30pm on Saturday and also one evening last week when the outside temperature was 7C

According to the Met Office the lowest temperature in our area is expected to be between 4-5C during the rest of tonight (Saturday) and warmer as the day progresses, so what's the reason for this senseless waste of road salt?

Perhaps whoever is responsible for this is looking at a different forecast or knows something that we or the Met Office don't! In any case, come the middle of January when the roads will be thick with snow and ice and the traffic round Harlow is gridlocked, they will be complaining they have run out of road salt. No surprise there then.

Leader, Harlow Council

YOU may have read reports that a number of London borough councils have bought or rented private sector the country in order to temporarily house homeless people. Harlow was mentioned as one of these areas.

as one of these areas.

It seems that just two privately-owned houses have been rented in Harlow by one of the London councils but we are concerned that any continuation of this practice could have an effect on the already severe shortage of housing available for Harlow residents.

We also believe that London residents in need of housing should not be forced to move away from their own communities.

We are making our views known to the councils concerned and we are also urging the Government to look again at the impact of its proposed welfare and benefit reforms and its reduced funding for local government.

These are driving London councils with high costs to look for cheaper housing elsewhere for their residents.

As Christmas approaches, the town is starting to look very bright and festive and I trust you will all enjoy the town centre Christmas tree and the many other decorations and lights that will soon be in place.

The wonderful trees in and around Harlow also look magnificent at the moment in their autumn colours. I know how important it is to residents that we keep the town looking attractive throughout the year. Many of you will have noticed the start last month of a two-year hedge maintenance programme. This £400,000 programme is part of a number of macause agreed by the of measures agreed by the council and our partners, Kier Harlow, to keep the town safe, clean and tidy. It involves the cutting back of overgrown shrubs, bushes, hedges and trees in residential areas to keep footpaths clear and to help with picking up litter and removing dumped rubbish.

If not, then why did the candidates for the recent Police and Crime Commissioner election stand on political platforms?

Taking the lead

SIR, It was refreshing to see such a lot of people at the memorial service in Harlow Town Park on Armistice Day.

Helpers needed for Christmas shelter vides food and shelter to Harlow's homeless over the Christmas period is seeking volunteers to lend a hand.

Haven, which will open its annual night shelter on December 23, wants to hear from people willing to cover four-hour day and night shifts at its base in the Great Parndon Community Association Play Barn in Abercrombie Way.

A meeting of volunteers takes place at the GPCA next Thursday (November 29), starting at 7.30pm, at which a shift rota will be finalised.

Committee member Jo Busson said: "We are look-ing for volunteers willing to give up some of their time at Christmas to help those less fortunate than them.

"Next week's meeting is the perfect opportunity to not only meet with people interested in taking part but roles and responsibilities of all volunteers.

The charity is encouraging anyone interested in volunteering to register their details on its website www.chocolaterun.org. For more information, contact Jo on 07951 612803.

Man had ch abuse images 'for revenge'

By COURT REPORTER star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MAN jailed for downloading and distributing images of child abuse claimed he did so because he wanted to take revenge on a paedophile after he was abused as a child.

David Charles Scally (34), of Park Court, Harlow, was sentenced to two years and four months by Judge Karen Walden-Smith, who told him: "This was by any account an extremely large number of level four and five images.
"There were also a large number of level four and five images that were distributed in which very young children are being abused in the most horrible of

Scally admitted two offences of distributing indecent images, three of downloading indecent images and two of possessing return pornography.

Peter Gair, prosecuting at Chelmsford Crown Court, said police raided Scally's home in October 2011 and removed equipment including an MP3 player, an iPhone and a computer tower which contained images ranging from level one (least serious) to level five (most serious).

Of the still images, 2,537 were at level one, 939 at level two, 995 at level three, 1,457 at level four and 73 at level five.

Mr Gair said Scally distributed 29 movie images as well as 291 indecent photos of children on 489 occasions. He also downloaded images of sexual activity involving animals.

Andrew Clowser, representing Scally, said in mitigation his client had been abused as a child and had talked "intermittently" to paedophiles over a two-year period on Skype because he wanted to exact revenge.

Mr Clowser said the language

Scally used when talking to them including references to kidnapping - was him adopting the "ver-

"There is no evidence he did these things," said Mr Clowser. "It was never going to happen; it was a crazy fantasy.

"He was intermittently on October 2011. He wanted to meet other paedophiles, his motive was to exact revenge on a paedophile." Passing sentence, the judge

Speaking after the case, Detective Superintendent Ian Collins said: "This is another pos-itive result at court for the online protection team. 'This offender will now have the opportunity to gain the help needed for his addiction. Once he is released from prison he will be monitored by the Dangerous Offender Unit and have restrictions on his usage of the internet as part of his SOPO order."

Police explore possible | Caution urged on link between break-ins

DETECTIVES are investigating a possible link between burglaries at two houses in Harlow on the same night.

The front door of a property in Kingsland was forced open and a handbag, wallet and two sets of car keys were stolen.

The handbag was discarded a short distance away and returned to its owner.

The second break-in hap-pened a short distance away in nearby Pyenest Road. Once again the front door of a house was forced open by thieves who took a mobile phone and laptop computer.

Both burglaries happened in the early hours of last Wednesday (November 14), Investigating officer DC Adam Goodger said: "We're naturally looking for any witnesses to either break-in but also reminding people that they need to double-lock their front doors from the inside rather than just lifting up the handle. "We're expecting to see a spike in house burglaries as Christmas approaches and we don't want to see people have a miserable festive period."

He added: "We're not sure if the same people committed both burglaries but we're certainly looking at aspects of both of them. They were a short distance apart so it's not inconceivable that the same people are behind both crimes.

Anyone with information about either break-in is urged to contact detectives at Harlow police station on 101.

Anurita Rohilla, pharmaceutical advisor for the West Essex Clinical Commissioning Group, said the 30 per cent increase in use of the drugs could lead to serious resistance issues within the next few years.
"Widespread use of antibiotics for many years has already resulted in many of them being ineffective against a variety of bacteria," she said.

"There are even bacteria which are now

"We know from the feedback we receive from GPs that many people expect – often demand – antibiotics prescribed to them if they have a cold, cough, flu or earache.

"However, the facts are that antibiotics will not help with most of these infections as the majority are caused by viruses. It is very important people don't treat antibiotics as a cure-all?

Nicked! Tory new county police chief

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor

CONSERVATIVE Nick Alston has been elected as Police & Crime Commissioner for Essex after an election in which just over one in 10 of the county's voters took part.

Mr Alston, the son of a police offi-cer, saw off strong competition from independent candidate Mick Thwaites in a closely-contested race.

He was ahead after first preference votes had been counted, but his majority was not big enough to win outright.

As a result, voters' second preferences were then factored in – and Mr Alson pipped Mr Thwaites to the £85,000-a-year post with a majority of Voters in Harlow had favoured Labour candidates Val Morris-Cook for the role, with Mr Alston coming a close second.

Speaking after his win, Mr Alston said he was honoured to have been chosen as the county's first PCC.

"I am very much looking forward to what we can do," he said. "This is a great opportunity.

lick Alston (Conservative) 62,350 Nick Thwaites (Independent) 58,664

He will start his new role, which lasts for four years, today (Thursday). Harlow MP Robert Halfon congratulated his Conservative colleague on the victory but warned him: "The hard ork starts now.

Mr Halfon told the Star: "Nick is a good man and I'm sure he will prove nimself to be the right choice for "These elections mean that for the first time ever local people have been given the chance to have democratic input into the policing of their towns and neighbourhods. Nick has been to Harlow a number of times and understands the issues facing policing in our town.

"The hard work starts now and I will be working closely with him over the coming months and years to ensure that residents are listened to."

WINNER: Nick Alston

The turnout across Essex was poor, with just 13 per cent of the county's voters taking part in the poll.

Mr Halfon admitted the Government had not done enough to make sure residents were properly informed about the election and its significance.

"Voter turnout was incredibly low and this was largely due to the fact and ans was largery due to the fact that people were not given enough information about the role of police and crime commissioner and its sig-nificance," he said.

"It was also the wrong time to hold an election. I hope that next time around it will be held at the same time as local elections in May, which would also save a lot of money."

One of Mr Alston's first jobs could be to appoint a successor to the Chief Constable for Essex, Jim Barker-McCardle, who announced he would be stepping down before the end of his contract which still has two years left

Essex Police said all PCC candiwere told of Mr Barker-McCardle's intentions before the elec-

Timely tips to avoid a toilet catastrophe!

S the nights draw in and temperatures begin to plummet, Nostalgia has to ask: are you prepared for winter?

That was the question the Harlow Development Corporation posed to the town's earliest settlers back in November 1954 – a time when it wasn't uncommon for houesholders to be expected to brave an outside

Regular contributor Ron Bill brought in this leaflet, right, which was produced by the corporation in a bid to help households prepare for the big freeze.

Titled 'Frost Precautions', the guide was distributed to all residents living in the flourishing New Town and was packed with practical tips on protecting homes from a freeze-

"It wasn't uncommon for the Harlow Development Corporation to issue informative notices like this," said Ron, who worked for the

"It was considered a vital part of the service provided to the town's early residents, and this leaflet in particular will have no doubt proven very useful in the days before the internet."

The very first item on the list reads: "At the first sign of a heavy frost, if there is an outside WC switch off the supply pipe to the cistern and flush the appliance. Then place a handful of salt in the WC pan."

By CHRIS MOSS News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

The leaflet goes on to give useful advice on what to do if the hot water supply fails, warning against attempting to thaw out frozen pipes by using a blow lamp.

"The gentle heat provided by a paraffin stove or similar appliance is the most satisfactory method of thawing out," it adds.

A section on what to do in the event of a pipe bursting tells householders to "turn off the main stopcock, open all taps to empty pipes and cisterns, put out the fire or boiler, switch off the main electricity supply and inform the housing department."

It ends by providing the telephone number and address at which the corporation's housing officers could be contacted.

Ron added: "It's hard to imagine the council providing all of its tenants with this kind of detailed information today. It just shows you how committed the corporation was to providing residents with help and support back then."

THE discovery of a fossil that is thought to be 6.5 million years old has brought an end to years of debate over the prehistoric origins of the Great White Shark.

Experts have disagreed over the evolution of the giant sea creature for the past 150 years, with many scientists believeing their ancestors were the much larger 'megatooth' sharks.

But the recent discovery of the fossil seems to have proved this theory wrong - and suggests the Great White actually evolved from much smaller Mako sharks.

US scientists analysed the teeth of the fossilised shark and found they were a similar shape to both pre-historic Mako sharks and modern-day Great Whites. They claim their discovery disproves the theory that the sharks evolved from shark's tale megasharks like the ferocious Megalodon, which stalked the oceans up to 28 million years ago and could grow to a massive 20 metres in length Professor Dana Ehret, of Monmouth University in New white sharks are just highly modified Makos. It fits the story now."

There are only two species of Mako shark alive today - short-finned and long-finned. They are smaller than Great Whites and mainly eat fish. The biggest 'megatooth' shark that ever lived was 15-20 metres long and had a bite that would have been one of the most ferocious ever!

Raising cash for Pudsey

SCHOOLS, businesses and individuals throughout Harlow have been doing their bit to raise money for the BBC's annual Children In Need appeal.

Among those who took part were two members of staff at car dealership Bristol Street Motors, who saddled up to complete a gruelling cross-country cycle trek.

Sales manager Alan Clarke and sales advisor Glyn Williams cycled 350 miles in a sponsored bike ride which raised over £2,600. The pair started the journey from Bristol Street Motors' sister dealership in Newcastle. The staggered route took four days to complete and ended at the Harlow showroom in Edinburgh

Way. Alan said: "We received a huge amount of support from all the dealerships along the route which helped with such a challenge."

l Pupils at Burnt Mill Academy chipped in after holding a cookie and cake

Year 7 student Sophia Gander came up with the idea and worked with her classmates to produce advertising around the school as well as giving presentations in assembly promote the fundraiser. Elliot Tooley, head of Year 7, said: "Children at Burnt Mill are very much encouraged to come up with their own ideas. It's marvellous that this year a Year 7 student approached us about organising our fundraising event and took charge of the whole thing." l Pyjama-clad tots at Kiddi Caru nursery showed off their artistic flair for the

WIN Tickets to see Cinderella

ST James Theatre Productions, in The Theater Froductions, in association with Tobacco Factory Theatre and Travelling Light, will be staging Cinderella from December 12 to January 26 at the St James Theatre in London.

When this production was performed in Bristol last year it held audiences captivated by its dazzlingly original take on one of the oldest and best-loved fairy tales of all times.

When Ella's mother dies, she is brought up by her devoted and loving father who teaches her the names and calls of the woodland birds that surround their home. But when her father marries again, Ella's peaceful life is turned upside down by a host of new and unpleasant relations.

With their quirky visual style, crystal-clear storytelling, original live music and pitch-perfect ensemble acting, director Sally Cookson and her team bring this classic tale of fortunes reversed startlingly and imaginatively to

The Star has five pairs of topprice tickets to give away for the performance on Friday, December 14. To take part, just answer this simple question:

Am-dram group set its sights on glittering prize

By NATALIE DEARMAN

AN amateur dramatics group with links to Harlow have swapped the village hall for the small screen for their latest project.

Hatfield Heath-based The Heath Players are currently starring in Sky Arts show Nation's Best Am Dram, in which they compete against other groups from across the UK for the chance to perform at the Lyric Theatre in London's West End.

Formed in the mid-1960s, the group has around 20 active members – many of whom also perform regularly at Victoria Hall for Harlow Theatre

Chrissie Richards (51), who has been with the players for about six years, said: "We saw an advert for [the show] and just entered on the spur of the moment as we thought it would be

"We loved the idea of playing in the West End. It's something we all dream of doing, so for us it was more about the end prize than being on television."

The group had two weeks to come up with an idea for a short video to be submitted to the judges – actress Miriam Margolyes, theatre critic Quentin Letts and stage producer Bill Kenwright – who would decide on who would make it through to the

They decided to perform The Merry Wives of Windsor in the style of hit ITV2 reality show The Only Way Is Essex – and promptly secured themselves a place in the final eight. Chrissie, from Sawbridgeworth, continued: "We filmed the video really quickly as members had other engagements. We also decided to film it outside so had to keep running out in between rain showers."

Having made it through to the show, the group were assigned actress Julie Graham as a mentor- and handed their first challenge of performing a scene from Henrik Ibsen's An Enemy of the

"It was not something we would ever have chosen so it was quite difficult," said Chrissie. "We had about three-to-four weeks to rehearse it which is how long we would normally have to do a whole production."

The six-week series, which started earlier this month, will see the groups battle it out in a series of other challenges, being whittled down until the final winner is declared. TV STARS: Martin HARLOW'S very own punk pioneer Steve Drewett returns to the stage on Sunday evening – but he's leaving his amp at home. Best known for his blistering live sets with The Newtown Neurotics, Steve will be playing unplugged for the first time as part of The Square's monthly acoustic club.

With a setlist featuring acoustic arrangements of Neurotics classics and rarities alongside several new songs, the singer, songwriter and guitarist will also be performing new self-penned festive song It's Christmas Time. It's something that few would expect from a man whose scathing social commentary has been such a defining factor in his career, but Steve is confident Neurotics fans won't be

"When you hear it, it will become obvious that it is perfectly me, it is very catchy and very relevant," he said

"I was fascinated by the form and wondered if I could come up with a Christmas tune that would capture the mood of the times. but with a life-affirming message. Not Christmas crass but Christmas cool.

He added: "I also believe I may be the first Harlow songwriter to attempt such a feat and I am looking forward to previewing it live at the Square.

Steve appears at the Square Acoustic Club on Sunday evening, with support from Keeler's Walk. Doors open at 8pm and admission is &4.

Chrissie remained tight-lipped about the Heath Players' fate but said: "We learned a lot being with our mentor and faced some new challenges as part of the experience."

Fellow player Steve Foster (62), who is

GAMBIT certificate 12A, running time 1h29m

MICHAEL Hoffman's remake of the 1966 screwball caper about a cat burglar and showgirl who plan an elaborate heist has impeccable credentials.

Screenwriters Joel and Ethan Coen have Oscars on the mantelpiece for Fargo and No Country For Old Men, while leading man Colin Firth deservedly collected a golden statuette for his exemplary work in The King's Speech.

In addition, co-star Tom Courtenay was twice shortlisted for Hollywood's top honour for Doctor Zhivago and The Dresser, while Hoffman himself guided Helen Mirren and Christopher Plummer to Oscar nominations in 2009 for the handsome historical drama The Last Station.

With so much talent in front of and behind the camera, what could possibly go wrong? Everything, it seems, because Hoffman's reworking is an unmitigated mess.

Mild-mannered art curator Harry Deane (Firth) grows tired of the constant bullying of his obscenely wealthy boss, Lord Lionel Shabandar (Alan Rickman) so he concocts an elaborate swindle to teach his employer a lesson.

With the help of loyal friend and forger The Major (Courtenay), Harry travels to Texas to befriend rodeo queen PJ Puznowski (Cameron Diaz) and her tobacco-spittin' grandma (Cloris Leachman).

Harry asks the blonde beauty to pose as the owner of a priceless Monet called Haystacks At Dusk, which Shabandar is desperate to acquire as a companion canvas to the other Haystacks in his private collection. The masterpiece is actually a fake

The masterpiece is actually a fake painted by The Major but Harry is convinced he can pull the wool over Shabandar's greedy eyes.

Thrilled by the prospect of a sizeable payoff, PJ travels to London to carry out her part of the plan and Shabandar is clearly smitten by her. However, he is less convinced by the authenticity of the painting and calls in his own expert, the flamboyant Zaidenweber (Stanley Tucci), which throws Harry's preposterous plan into disarray.

Gambit is a shambles. We laugh out of pity and embarrassment as the script blunders from dream sequences that suggest Harry might actually pull off his hare-brained heist to Austin Powers-style nudity that protects Rickman's modesty with a generously proportioned paperweight.

Firth loses his trousers for a protracted centrepiece sequence at the luxurious five-star Savoy Hotel in London . . . but Gambit loses its way well before then, wheezing and spluttering from one clumsy gag to the next.

The only award Firth will be collecting is a dreaded Razzie, which salutes the worst in Hollywood film-making.

"This is absurd," despairs Firth, standing half naked on the hotel ledge as he stares down on passing black cabs. You said it, Colin.

TWILIGHT: BREAKING DAWN PART 2 Bella (Kristen Stewart) re-awakens as a vampire, contentedly falling back into the arms of lover Edward Cullen (Robert Pattinson). Soon after, best friend Jacob (Taylor Lautner) confesses to her he has imprinted on their half-mortal, half-vampire offspring Renesmee (Mackenzie Foy). Once the young mother recovers from the shock and accepts Jacob as her daughter's protector, Bella and Edward settle into domestic bliss. But their joy is shortlived when Edward's cousin Irina (Maggie Grace) mistakenly identifies Renesmee as an immortal child - an abomination under ancient vampire law - and reports her fears to the vampire counsel led by Aro (Michael Sheen), Caius (Jamie Campbell Bower) and Marcus (Christopher Heyerdahl). They marshal an army including sibling quards Jane (Dakota Fanning) and Alec (Cameron Bright) and enforcers Demetri (Charlie Bewley) and Felix (Daniel Cudmore), leading to a battle royale between the Volturi and the Cullens.

SKYFALL With James Bond (Daniel Craig) reportedly killed in action and a database of MI6 assets falling into the wrong hands, section chief M (Dame Judi Dench) is summoned to Westminster to appear before before a panel including the new chairman of the Intelligence and Security Committee, Mallory (Ralph Fiennes), and ambitious rival Clair Dowar (Helen McCrory). While M fends off sustained attacks on her reputation, news filters through that Bond has survived and M engages him to track down menacing cyber terrorist Raoul Silva (Javier Bardem). Working alongside O (Ben Whishaw) and field agent Eve (Naomie Harris), Bond traverses the globe in search of Silva, crossing paths with the mysterious Severine (Berenice Marlohe).

NATIVITY 2: DANGER IN THE MANGER certificate U, 1h45m

ST Bernadette's primary school is in dire straits and headmistress Mrs Bevans (Pam Ferris) is at the end of her tether, so she can barely contain her relief when supply teacher Donald Peterson (David Tennant) arrives to take charge of the excitable tykes.

But one disastrous lesson with hyperactive classroom assistant Mr Poppy (Marc Wootton) is enough to convince Mr Peterson that he has made a terrible mistake.

Mrs Bevans promises Donald she will make him headmaster if he stays, so he persists, helping Mr Poppy to audition the children for a national choir competition called A Song For Christmas.

Soon Donald finds himself on the road with Mr Poppy and most of the class in an amphibious tour bus. Meanwhile, private school Oakmoor and its snooty teacher Gordon Shakespeare (Jason Watkins) re-ignite their rivalry with St Bernadette's by entering the same competition.

SILVER LININGS PLAYBOOK certificate 15, 2h02m

WRITER-director David O Russell seems destined for awards glory with this quirky romantic comedy about an emotionally bruised thirtysomething struggling to piece his life back together after the ultimate betrayal.

School teacher Pat Solitano (Bradley Cooper) returns home to discover his wife in the shower with another man. He snaps, batters his rival to a bloody pulp and is sent to a psychiatric facility for eight months as part of his plea bargain with the courts.

He emerges a much calmer man but is still haunted by his wife's infidelity and vows to win her back. He returns home to live with his father Pat Sr (Robert De Niro) and mother Dolores (Jacki Weaver), who want their boy to move on and find some stability.

So they are understandably concerned when their son forges an unlikely friendship with crazy local girl Tiffany (Jennifer Lawrence), who needs a partner for a forthcoming amateur dance competition. As Pat and Tiffany work through their problems, they discover a sense of peace in each other's arms.

Guide price £599,950

Agent Geoffrey Matthew Estates, 47 High Street, Old Harlow. Telephone (01279) 444988 TUCKED away in a quiet cul-de-sac in Tye Green Village, Tye Lodge is a detached five/six bedroom property in a plot of approximately one third of an acre.

To the front of the house is block paving leading to the covered front entrance porch and double width hardwood doors which open up into entrance hallway. From here there are doors leading to the inner hallway and from there to the lounge/diner and main reception room. The latter has windows to the front and side and a marble fire surround and hearth with inset living flame gas fire.

Next to this is the family room with sliding patio doors onto the rear garden.

The kitchen/diner has an extensive range of modern, light wood units and glass display cabinet. Integrated appliances include a dishwasher, wine chiller and fridge freezer. There is also plenty of room for a dining table.

There is also a study which overlooks the garden and a shower room with a double width, step-in power shower.

The back hallway has a door to the rear garden and a door to the garage, with stairs to the first floor landing and a doorway through to the annexe with , kitchen/utility room, a shower room and bedroom.

On the first floor are another five bedrooms, with an en-suite to the master. On the top landing there is an eaves storage cupboard and a family bathroom. Other features of this property include an in/out driveway, integral garage and a back garden with extensive patio to the side and rear, a heated swimming pool and pool house.

Taken for Granted

Houses, cottages, flats, apartments, maisonettes, studios, detached, semi, terraced - these are terms we as estate agents hear every day of our lives. They are the lifeblood of our business, but the common theme is they all represent the concept of home

We are privileged to be a nation of homeowners. Property is right up there with the weather when it comes to conversation fodder, especially this year! We can t get enough of it, along with the perceived personal security offered by bricks and mortar that has long been a creator of wealth.

Either way, we are all the lucky ones! Because whilst we have been focussing on what to buy or where to rent, most of us have been unaware of, forgotten, or one has to admit, ignored, the plight of the ever-increasing number of homeless people. Those who have been dealt a raw deal in life, and to whom house prices are irrelevant. As are en-suite bathrooms, choice of carpets, views from the bedroom, quality of kitchen fittings, proximity to the station, size of garden or a host of other attributes that we tend to take for granted.

Homelessness has many causes, such as family breakdown, redundancy, repossession, a criminal past, or even people who have represented their country in the armed forces but struggle to settle into civilian life. Each of these is a tragedy in its own right that is compounded further by homelessness.

This article is not an appeal for money. It is simply a reminder about our priorities, and to think of those who don t share the simple pleasures we take for granted, such as changing into something comfortable after work, watching TV on the sofa with our loved ones, enjoying a meal with friends, or simply getting into a cosy bed at night.

At this time of year especially, let s remember those who don t have the luxury of a roof over their heads without our traditions. From decorating the tree to hanging stockings, many customs go back over centuries, but just when and where did they originate?

Pagans and Prince Albert - the origins of traditions

Christmas Trees

■ Brought to the UK by Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, in the mid-1800s, the tradition of decorating a tree was started long before that. Legend has it that in the eighth century, Saint Boniface in Germany cut down an oak tree worshipped by pagans and a fir tree sprang up from its roots. The pagans converted to Christianity and decorated the tree to celebrate Christmas rather than the winter

Mistletoe

Druids revered mistletoe for its uncanny ability of remaining green throughout the winter and yet having no roots. They used to harvest it during the winter solstice and used it for medicinal purposes. The Scandinavians associated mistletoe with their goddess of love and the Romans saw it as a symbol of peace, which may be why we think a kiss beneath a sprig will lead to good luck.

Christmas Cards

■ It was the royal family in Victorian Britain that had a hand in the origins of this tradition too. Entrepreneur Sir Henry Cole commissioned the first Christmas card in 1843 as he was too busy to write individual greetings to friends and associates. A thousand cards were printed and Cole sold the ones he had left over for 6d (two and a half pence). Once the royal family started sending cards, their popularity grew.

Stockings

■ The tradition of hanging our stockings originates from the Norse god, Odin. While celebrating New Year, children left food in their boots by the chimney for Ódin's winged horse. Odin swapped the food for gifts and, as Christianity arrived, St Nicholas and his flying reindeer replaced Odin and the winged horse, and the boots became stockings.

Pagan mid-winter rituals had evergreen wreaths which symbolised the circle of life that started anew each spring. The tradition of bringing evergreen foliage indoors to decorate the home was thought to protect it from evil spirits who tried to gain entry in the colder months.

Baubles

Christmas baubles were originally made of glass and invented in the small German town of Lauscha, which specialised in glass blowing. The first American-made glass ornaments and baubles were created by William DeMuth in New York in 1870 and then baubles and other decorations were adopted by the masses when, by 1880, Woolworth's sold inexpensive, commerciallyproduced Christmas baubles and ornaments.

F. W. Woolworth had discovered the Lauscha baubles during a visit to Germany and made a fortune by importing the German glass ornaments to America. As time went by the glass baubles were commonly replaced by

Real tree or artificial the fors and againsts

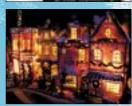

AS we approach December, some Christmas trees are already starting to make an appearance in homes up and down the country. For many families, the first weekend in December marks the time they decide to decorate the tree. Others like to wait until December 25 is almost here, but in this age when we are all asked to be as environmentally friendly as possible, should be we buy an artificial tree and use it year after year, or go in search of the perfect living tree to be the centre piece of our decorating?

Artificial trees do offer a long-term solution for your Christmas tree decorating needs and the latest generation of fake trees don't look that fake - but, of course, you'll miss that glorious fresh pine smell. Economically, artificial trees can be easier on your purse. For the cost of a single large live tree, you can purchase an artificial tree that looks the same but will last for many festive seasons. So if they look the same, cost less, can be used year after year and can prevent living trees from being chopped down, should we all be opting for an artificial tree this year?

But don't panic if you're a traditionalist who can't bear the thought of missing out on your fresh tree. There's a good 'green' argument against the artificial option if you want one. While chopping down a living tree may see like an un-environmentally-friendly act, it is actually the greener option! Artificial trees are manufactured using a polyvinyl chloride (or PVC), which is a petroleum-derived plastic and is non-renewable and polluting. Some artificial trees even come with warning labels due to their lead content.

Real Christmas trees, on the other hand, are harvested after eight years or so, and while those trees are growing they help to sequester the carbon dioxide that is produced by modern industries. When the time comes for harvesting, each tree that is cut down must be replaced. So most tree farms plant between one and three new trees for every one that is cut, in order to maintain a constant

So fortunately the tree population is not reduced due to Christmas tree farming, but instead is maintained, protected and, in many instances, increased. And in terms of the transportation costs and impact, trees must be grown fairly locally in order to make it into homes while still fresh.

Christmas Guide 2012

Stay calm, ask for help ... and have a stress-free time

HAT do you really want for Christmas? More time, more joy, and less stress perhaps?

The key to a calmer, more relaxed and surely more enjoyable festive season has got to be organisation.

With a little forward planning, you can simplify your celebrations and spend the time relaxing with family and friends - just as it should be!

By breaking down Christmas preparation into small, easy-to-take steps, you can give yourself a head start for a stress-free season.

Why not try to get all of your present shopping done and wrapped at least a few weeks ahead of the big day, which would free up your time for things that have to be done more last minute.

If you haven't already done so, start your menu planning now and ensure that you follow your Christmas menu check lists meticulously.

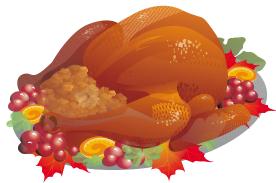

Maybe pre-cook some of your dishes and freeze them.

Don't be afraid to ask for help, either. An extra pair of hands or two will definitely allow you to enjoy the entire experience more.

Cooking together can also be a good time for bonding with children and friends.

For example, why not allocate each helper a specific role? This way, you will have time to enjoy yourself and entertain your guests at the same time.

Make a list of the dishes you'll serve and the ingredients you'll need.

As part of your planning, consider how many dinner guests there will be. Sketch out a timeline of what you can prepare four to five days in advance, and then do your grocery shopping a week ahead of time. This way, you'll limit the things you need to purchase at the last minute.

If a recipe calls for fresh ingredients where frozen ingredients can also be used then consider using frozen vegetables. Dishes such as cranberry or bread sauce can also be made in advance and kept in the fridge.

If you're feeling really organised, why not label your serving dishes ahead of time to ensure you have the right sized baking dish for each menu item. Once you have decided on your menu, think about which serving pieces to use for each dish, and mark them with sticky notes, even labelling everything right down to the serving spoons. List your dishes and the ingredients that you need to buy now and begin picking up non-perishable items such as tins, jars and frozen goods in your weekly shop. This way, you can plan the meal to fit your budget, rather than the other way round - and spread the cost, instead of piling your trolley high while in last-minute panic mode.

It's easy to get swept away on a sea of gifts, parties and good food. By now, you should have a good idea of what you can afford for this coming Christmas, so work out your budget and stick to it. The best way to do this is by breaking your budget down into individual budgets for gifts for friends, family members and so on, and to keep all receipts and a running tally of what you have spent to date.

If your decorations are looking a little tired, there's still time to think about homemade replacements. These are quick, easy and cheap to make and are a great rainy day activity to try with children. Get outdoors and collect pine cones and conkers, which will look stunning when spray-painted and hung on the tree.

Christmas fagre Sunday 25 November 11am - 3.30pm Broxbourne Civic Hall High Street, Hoddesdon EN11 8BE Handmade gifts, crafts and toys, traditional sweets, decorations and stocking fillers. There is a free draw for all visitors to the fayre and Father Christmas will have a small gift for all children. Adults £1.50, children and over 62s 70p. For details please call 01992 785632 Or visit www.broxbourne.gov.uk

A little black number for the party season?

THERE's no better time than Christmas to dress up. It's not called the party season for nothing!

A party outfit doesn't have to cost a fortune, but to look your best it's worth taking the time to pick something that accentuates the positive while minimising any negative areas!

As soon as the Christmas party invitation arrives, you're inevitably thinking about what to wear and dressing up is no small issue, especially for females.

Whether it's for a work-related event or a get-together with family and friends, party dresses are one of life's simple pleasures.

The festive season adds a little sparkle to life in the midst of all the cold and dark. What's not to love about that?

When shopping for a party dress, the moment you need to focus on is the first instant you see yourself in the changing room mirror in the new frock.

If the first thought in your head is, "this would be good for a specific event" then you're halfway there.

But if the first thought in your head is, "this would be good if I lost half a stone/had it shortened/ lengthened, etc" then move on. Life's too short.

Next, think about how you feel in the dress. Does this dress make you happy or not? It's that simple.

Look around a changing room full of women trying on new clothes, and you'll see half of them pulling anxious faces while trying to yank the straps to a more comfortable/flattering position; and half of them standing in camera-pose, gazing in the mirror.

No prizes for guessing which half should buy the new dress.

To look and feel glamorous, a heel can make a big difference to an outfit, especially for the party season. Kurt Geiger recently reported that sales of their 12cm-plus heels had quadrupled, so any height goes, from a kitten to

But there's also a growing movement towards the flat party shoe, which model Alexa Chung has made her thing. As for staying warm on the way to and from the event, you won't go wrong with faux fur.

Depending on your budget, you'll find it readily available from ASOS to Asda and Marks & Spencer to Chanel.

Finally, if money's tight this year, you can always pull out whatever you bought for last year!

Many of the same trends that were around last year still have mileage and, with a few tweaks here and there, maybe a belt or some different jewellery, you'll be good to go.

Opening Hours: 9:00 - 17:30 Weekdays & 10:00 - 16:00 Saturday 50 Bengeo Street, Bengeo, Hertford, Herts. SG14 3ET. Tel: 01992 515850 Email: shop@itsdigital.co.uk Web: www.itsdigital.co.uk

Be a bit different with gourmet gift

THERE's nothing quite like making Christmas more personal by making your own gorgeous gourmet gifts. From chutneys to cookies and biscuits, chocolates to liqueurs, you can really show you care by presenting a homemade gift that will be appreciated long after the festivities are over. Don't forget the pretty packaging, though, this can make

REINDEER CUPCAKES

Ingredients: 175g butter; 165g caster sugar; half tsp natural vanilla extract; 2 eggs, at room temperature; 110g self-raising flour; 150g plain flour; 160ml buttermilk; 500g fondant icing coloured brown, 100g/4oz of it a paler brown; 50g fondant icing coloured red; 25g fondant icing coloured black; twigs or wire for the antlers; and spaghetti for attaching

For the ganache: 140g chocolate, chopped; 75ml

Instructions: Heat oven to 180C/160C fan/gas 4. Line the holes of a 12-hole muffin tin with paper cases.

Beat the butter, sugar and vanilla in a medium bowl using an electric mixer until light and fluffy. Beat the eggs into the butter mixture one at a time. Add half the sifted flours and half the buttermilk, and mix on low speed until just combined. Mix in the remaining flours and buttermilk. Divide the mix evenly among the paper cases. Gently smooth the tops (this will help the cupcakes to rise evenly). Bake for 25-30 mins or until lightly golden and cooked when tested with a skewer. Allow to stand for 5 mins in the tin before transferring to a wire rack to cool

To make the ganache: Put the chocolate in a bowl, bring the cream to a simmer and pour it over the chocolate. Stir until smooth. Cool until firm.

Ice the cupcakes with ganache, then with brown fondant icing. Use the rest of the colours for the ears, eye and nose. Attach ears to the head by pushing a 3cm piece of spaghetti a little way into the ear, then pushing the other end into the head.

Decorations - when should they be put up, taken down?

up Christmas decorations? For some, the answer will be a resounding "yes" and they will wait until we are well into December before even thinking about getting that dusty old box containing the lights and baubles down from the

There are others, however, who will scarcely see the back of Hallowe'en or Bonfire Night before they start illuminating the house and garden. Although when to do it varies according to family tradition and custom, modern decorations can take considerable time to set up, so many people are now decorating their homes from December 1 Originally no decorations were put up before Christmas Eve as it was deemed unlucky.

Since the Victorian era, Christmas decorations have been traditionally taken down on the 12th day of Christmas (January 5). However, up until this time people kept their evergreen decorations of holly, ivy and mistletoe up until February 2 Candlemas Day - which traditionally ended the Christmas season, 40 days after the birth of Jesus Christ.

in his poem Ceremonies for Candlemas Eve.

Down with the rosemary and bays, Down with the mistletoe;

Instead of holly, now up-raise The greener box (for show).

It is feasible that a form of Christmas decorations dates back to the Roman winter festival of Saturnalia. They attached candles to trees for Sol the sun god, and replicas of Bacchus, the fertility god. The ancient Germanic tradition was to attach candles and fruit to tree branches, for their god, Woden. Martin Luther is believed to have decorated a tree with candles in the 16th Century.

However, it is more likely that the beginnings of the modern Christmas decoration was from the German Christmas markets of the 16th century. As souvenirs for visits to the markets, people would purchase shaped gingerbreads and ornaments made of wax to hang on their trees. As early as 1601, there are accounts of trees in Strasbourg being decorated in 'wafers, golden sugar twists and paper flowers'.

Tinsel was also invented around this time, in approximately 1610. Machines had been invented to turn real silver into wafer thin strips that formed the tinsel. Silver continued to be the main material up to the middle of the 20th century. A mix of lead and tin was also used but was not a durable This remained the main material until the advancement of manufacturing and cheap aluminiumbased tinsel took over and by the 1950s.

During the Victorian Era most decorations were home-made, particularly stars and snowflakes, paper baskets for sugared almonds, candles and an angel for the top of the tree - and it was in the 1850s that in Lauscha, Germany, the first glass ornaments were produced, the forerunner of the Christmas bauble.

The traditions associated with using ivy date back into pre-history when it was seen as a 'female' plant. When combined with holly as a decoration it is said to represent the union between men and women and it was said that whichever was brought into the house first would dictate who rules the residence! Bacchus, the Roman god of drinking, is always depicted with a wreath of ivy as it was said to ward off drunkenness. Not the best season perhaps! lvy has a number of traditions associated with it, including the ability to predict the future and cause domestic strife. It was said that people should drop an ivy leaf in a glass of water on New Year's Eve and leave it until Twelfth Night. If it stays fresh and green then a good vear will follow - but look out if any black spots appear as these foretell

Caring for Pets

Our senior vet Helen Lee BVSc MRCVS has been working in the Hertford and Ware area for over 27 years and is well known as a very good, caring, friendly vet. Helen is very keen to see second opinions from all our vets if required.

Walton Lodge Veterinary Group is a family business run by Helen & Rodney Pugh, 🚄 their son and two daughters. We believe that the company is small enough to care but large enough to give choice to our clients.

We are grateful that most of our vets stay with Walton Lodge long-term and we advise that you try to see the same vet where possible to ensure continuity of care.

We provide a 24 hour emergency service for the treatment of the pets in our care at our Hoddesdon surgery, which is manned 24/7. We believe this service is essential for the health of the pets in our care. Next year our emergency service will transfer to our new purpose built surgery in Hertford.

We offer an on-line veterinary drug supply company to help clients purchase long-term medication at more affordable prices. This also saves on the cost of a prescription fee for clients registered at Walton Lodge. Please see www.vets-drugs-direct.com

All vaccines are with a vet and include Puppy vaccines:

Willia a wet and wild rafting Christmas gift

It was really exciting to see Team GB win gold and silver in the Olympic Canoe Slalom event at Lee Valley White Water Centre this summer. Now you too can take on the same rapids as the world's best athletes.

This is a unique opportunity not to be missed! You and your friends will never stop talking about rafting on the Olympic Standard Competition Course.

Led by a friendly raft guide, your half-day adventure starts with a calm but fast-paced descent followed by tougher challenges with each run of the course. You will face 13,000 litres of water every second and experience fast-paced descent, surfing, spinning and nose dunking! After your adventure, relax with a drink and a bite to eat at our licensed terrace café bar located in our award-winning centre that overlooks the course.

If you're stuck for ideas for Christmas presents, then a rafting gift voucher will go down a treat

Lee Valley White Water Centre is located near Waltham Cross, Hertfordshire and just 15 minutes walk from Waltham Cross train station and 10 minutes from the M25, Junctions 25 or 26 or the A10. For more information and to book visit: gowhitewater.co.uk or call 08456 770 606.

Lee Valley White Water Centre is offering two lucky readers a chance to raft the rapids. For your opportunity to win, simply answer this question:

Time to remember our shining lights

OVED ones who won't be with us this Christmas will be remembered at special ceremonies hosted by Isabel Hospice and St Clare Hospice.

During the Lights of Love events for Isabel Hospice there will be a short service of remembrance, carol singing and a countdown to the lighting of the tree. You will also be able to take home a small star to keep and hang on your own Christmas tree.

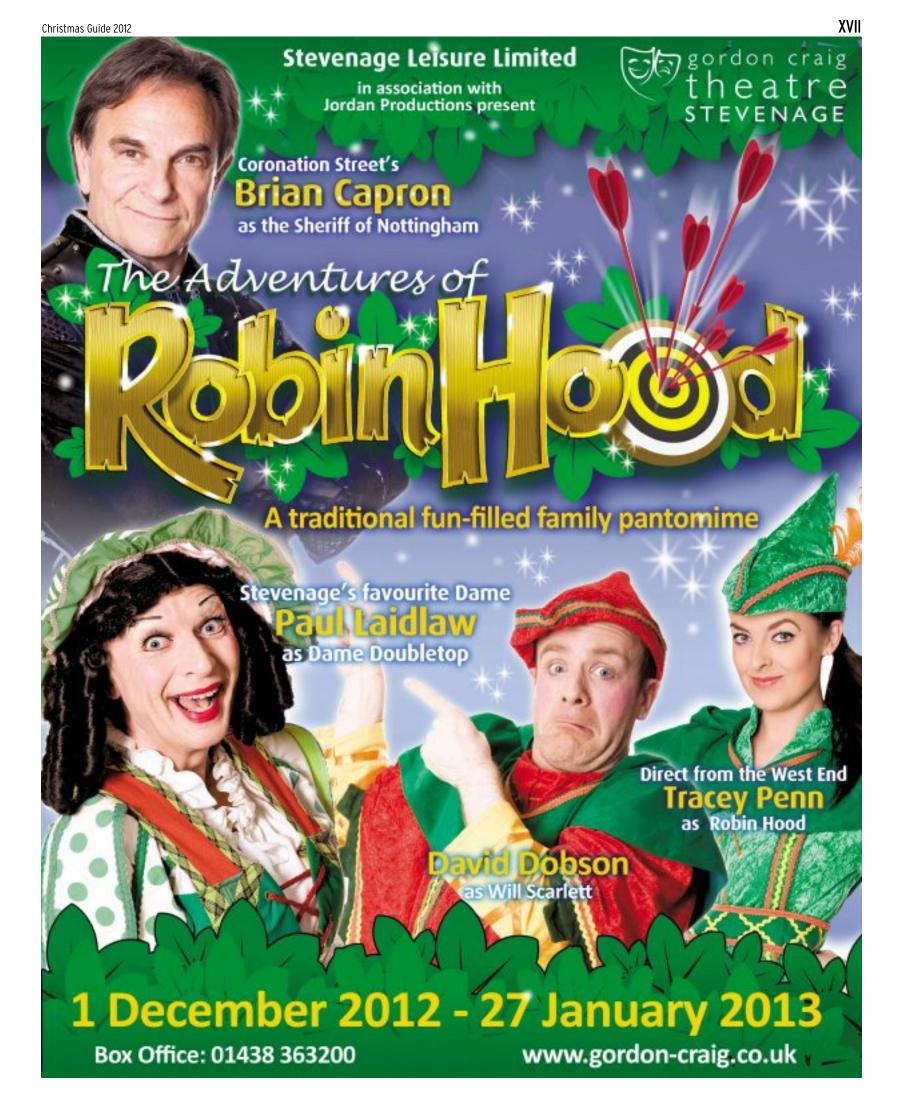

Names will be entered for each ceremony in a Book of Love, which can be viewed before, or immediately after the service. The Book of Love will then be on display until January at the nearest hospice shop to the ceremony.

St Clare Hospice in Hastingwood is also inviting you to remember the life of your loved ones this Christmas with its Light up a Life events.

Come together with friends and family to remember and celebrate the life of someone close to you and dedicate a light in their memory. Hundreds of lights will shine out to 'Light up a Life' for someone special to you and lights will be hung on the trees and in the grounds at each event as a symbol of remembrance for your loved ones.

The events are taking place across the community and give you a very special opportunity to reflect and share fond memories of your loved ones at this poignant time of year. The events are open to everyone; you don't have to have experienced hospice care.

Merry Christmas to all of our customers

GET into the festive spirit with one of our many fabulous Christmas events in and around the area. Not only can you help local businesses by doing your shopping locally, but you can save yourself time and money travelling further afield.

Hertford

GET ready for Christmas in style with Hertford's annual Christmas Gala tomorrow (Friday November 23), when shops will be open late and you can enjoy entertainment for all around the town.

Organised by Hertford Town Council in the town centre, the event takes place between 3.30pm and 7.30pm and promises seasonal fun and entertainment for everyone.

Visit Santa in his grotto in the White Hart in Salisbury Square and see his reindeer in Parliament Square from 5.30pm. There will also be a festive market, the switching on of the Christmas lights and music from local radio station Jack FM. Local choirs and performers from Top Hat Stage School will also be on hand to get everybody in the festive spirit and visitors can enjoy the festive food and craft street market in Market Place

Mayor of Hertford CIIr Jane Sartin will be presenting the trophy to the winner of the Hertford's Cheerful Trader competition and a prize to the winner of the shops' Winning Windows competition.

Chairman of Hertford Town Council's development and leisure committee,

Towns putting their fun-filled

Cllr Isabel Sigmac, said: "The gala should get local people and visitors into the festive mood at the start of the most important time of the year for town centre businesses. Hertford has a lot to offer - individual and specialist shops, history and award-winning food and drink outlets."

Hertford Museum will be open until 8pm and will be serving mulled wine and mince pies, alongside hands-on festive family activities, Christmas story-telling and carol singing from a local choir. The gala is supported by Paradise Wildlife Park, Café Rouge and 360 Play in Stevenage.

Bishop's Stortford

ON Sunday December 2, the Bishop's Stortford Retail Association (BSRA) is hosting a fundraising family Christmas event to help showcase the town to locals and visitors alike.

For just £1 you can buy a scratch card from participating retailers and you are guaranteed to win a prize. This could be vouchers, money off at selected stores, a free gift or even complimentary treatments and services, all worth far more that cost of the card.

All prizes have been donated by participating shops in an attempt to help create awareness of what Bishop's Stortford has to offer and provide events for the whole town to enjoy.

As well as supporting the town's retailers you will be raising money to help Isabel Hospice and St Clare Hospice. The final amount given to the hospices will be announced at the end of the scratch card promotion, so the more you buy the more the BRSA can donate.

The BSRA is funded wholly by local shops and businesses, so help your local retailers and shop locally this Christmas.

For retailers not already selling scratch cards but would like to be involved, contact Jackie at Elements Hair and Lifestyle at jackieelements@hotmail.co.uk or call (01279) 505151/506010 and speak with Tara or Trish for an induction pack.

Harlow

HARLOW'S annual Christmas lights switch-on looks set to be bigger and better than ever this year with stars from TOWIE, the cast of Harlow Playhouse's pantomime and live on a show with festive events penguins set to bring some fun to the proceedings.

The event takes place tonight (Thursday November 22) with three separate events across the town. It also marks the start of late-night shopping which takes place every Thursday in the lead-up to Christmas with free car parking in the major car parks.

There will be a variety of entertainment at Stone Cross market and Broad Walk between 3pm and 4.30pm, then at the Harvey Centre between 4.45pm and 5.45pm, and finally at The Water Gardens between 6 and 7pm. Christmas lights will be switched on at each separate venue and there will be penguins in the Water Gardens. Also during the day there will be a free arts workshop for children at The Gibberd Gallery.

Ware

WARE is once again all set for its annual Dickensian Evening, which takes place on Friday December 7 and promises to be the biggest and best yet. As last year, when more than 10,000 people attended the event, roads in the town centre will be closed and traffic diversions in place.

Amwell End will be closed from 5.30pm to give stallholders and a funfair time to set up. Other roads to be closed from 6pm to 10pm will be High Street, Baldock Street, Church Street, East Street and West Street.

Entertainment of all types and children's roundabouts will all add to the fun in Tudor Square, High Street and Amwell End, as well as six indoor venues, and many of the town's shops will open for the evening and serve

"It will again be a fantastic evening," says Jan Wing, chairman of the Ware Town Centre Partnership. "We expect more people than last year, and we shall be making a special effort to make Baldock Street an integral part of the event. Funfairs, music from the Playsomething Academy and the Future Hope Bus will all be there."

The main celebrations will begin at 7pm when the mayor, ClIr Phyllis Ballam, hailed by the Ware town crier, turns on the lights on the mighty horse chestnut tree in Tudor Square to the accompaniment of carols. The town's charities and clubs have booked stalls in Tudor Square, where the Christmas music will be playing throughout the evening. Other bands in the town will be Bill Freeman's Happy Jazz Band from Hoddesdon and Toque Tambor Samba Band will add to the atmosphere in the High Street with its colourful display. Look out for the Salvation Army carol singers and street buskers around the town. For the first time there will be a storyteller in Now Salon in High Street. There will be craft markets in Place House, Bluecoat Yard, and the Drill Hall, Amwell End, and a Hertfordshire country market of produce and food in

Refreshments will be served in St Mary's Church, which will also have produce stalls, and there will be the traditional Christmas Tree Festival in Leaside Church. People will be dressing in Dickensian garb - or even just the odd

Hadham Christmas Market takes place

Hadham Christmas Market takes place on Sunday December 9, having already made a name for itself as one of the best festive events in the area.

There is a fabulous selection of market stalls with a wide variety of goods, many of which are handcrafted. There is also a special food area and the market is spread across four venues within the village - Hopleys garden centre, the village hall, the Bull Inn and the Forge Museum.

This is a day the whole family can enjoy with fun activities, Santa's Grotto, the Green Tye choir, members of Redbridge brass band and hot and cold refreshments, all raising money for local charities. It runs from noon until 6pm.

Commercial Property Feature

Few simple steps that can help | to give your business a boost

AS a business owner, how can you improve your company in these difficult times?

Memorable, modern branding as well as effective marketing and the right choice of premises can give your business the boost it needs.

Refresh and develop your website. Keep images and information up-to-date and improve your SEO (Search Engine Optimisation) by including popular, relevant keywords and phrases in your text so your webpage features more prominently on search engines.

Modern networking. Does your business feature on the major networking sites like Facebook, Twitter and Linkedin? Spreading the word with regular updates and mail shots encourages people to attend events and conferences and keeps your company's image current.

Location, location. Does your setting work for you? A business address is more commercial than a home office environment.

giving your company a professional and productive atmosphere.

Choose carefully so your premises offer potential to expand as your company grows. If you have meeting rooms and conference rooms available at your business location, take advantage of them with regular networking events.

Allen House Business Centre in Sawbridgeworth can help meet your needs. With meeting rooms available for hire, conference facilities, networks and coffee mornings, ample car parking, telephone and internet packages and a central reception point for visitors and deliveries, it's not just the proximity to the mainline railway and motorways that will benefit your business. Visit www.allenhouse businesscentre co.uk or call (01279) 834834 for further details and availability of offices, starting at $295 pcm. You can even take the first simple step and 'like' us on Facebook!

Marked increase in industrial success

THERE has been a marked increase this month in the level of applicants seeking industrial premises within the Harlow area.

Coke Gearing have had success leasing and selling premises in Horsecroft Place, Lovet Road and the Harlow Mill areas. ranging in size from 1,500 sq.ft. to 4,500 sa.ft.

Having day-to-day dealings with the local commercial markets, it is becoming clear that we will soon face a shortage of stock.

Developers and owner-occupiers have not been constructing new property at the rate that is required to satisfy demand so there is a shortage of new, modern quality offices and industrial premises within the Harlow does have the advantage over other areas with the range of units available Many estates and buildings vary in quality and size from 1970s to 2000s accommodation, meaning that requirements from both start-up firms and established national firms can usually be satisfied in Harlow.

Following the opening of Coke Gearing's Harlow office some four weeks ago we have had success in securing new tenants and purchasers for landÎords and need more property. Please contact Adam Tindall MRICS on (01279) 758758 to discuss your commercial property needs.

FIRST TIME BUYERS GET ON THE PROPERTY LADDER IN HARLOW

Are you planning to buy a new home next year? Well if you are, you will be among the few who can afford to get onto the property ladder as a consequence of the size of large deposit amount required by most lenders today. According to figures from Lloyds TSB, only a quarter of next year's homebuyers will be first time buyers compared to 40 per cent when the market was at its height. This news is hardly surprising given the average deposit required now by first time buyers is approximately 20 per cent.

Prospective homebuyers in Enfield might find that as well as getting more property for their money, they will be able to purchase a brand new home with as little as a 4 per cent deposit by looking to buy in Harlow. Barratt Homes has a range of properties available at its Fifth Avenue development in the nearby town, which thanks to the Government-backed scheme FirstBuy, means that first-time buyers can purchase a brand new home with just a 4 per cent deposit.

This means that for a threebedroom property which is now available at Fifth Avenue costing £250,000, first time buyers will only have to pay £10,000 as a deposit. Furthermore, as the property is available now and ready to move into for Christmas, Barratt Homes has agreed to include carpets in the price of the sale

Steve Garton, Sales Director for Barratt North London comment: "Fifth Avenue is a superb development which offers first-time buvers fantastic value for money. The popular development is pulling many young homebuyers out of locations such as Enfield and Barnet, as Harlow offers better value for money whilst still offering excellent transport links just outside the M25.

Harlow enjoys a strategic position located close to the M11 which means the M25 London orbital road is just eight miles away. Just a 15 minute walk from the development is Harlow Station. offering a fast and efficient train line with frequent peak time services into London Liverpool Street station in just 33 minutes.

Steve continues: "Thanks to FirstBuy which allows first time buvers to purchase with a four per cent deposit, first time buyers are able to comfortably get onto the property ladder at Fifth Avenue. We have an excellent three bedroom house available now for just £250,000 which will be ready to move into just in time for Christmas. Anyone interested will have to get in touch quickly though as we don't expect this property to be available for long.'

Fifth Avenue offers a range of new three-bedroom homes available for occupation by Christmas.

AST your mind back to 2002 and the introduction of what has become a long-lived, high-tech luxury SUV to rival not just other 4x4s but also offerings from the luxury saloon market – the third-generation Range Rover.

A decade later and there's a new one promising to raise the premium 4x4 to new heights.

Admit it, we all know that the arrival of a new Range Rover is guaranteed to put rivals in the shade. The question is, by

From a visual inspection alone the answer is considerable. The car's sleek profile is striking. Unlike engineering, assessing design is a subjective activity, so here's a solid number to consider: 450. That's 450 kilograms, as in the amount of weight saved thanks to the use of lightweight materials and clever thinking from the engineers. Don't forget, such a saving has a positive affect on fuel economy, emissions and handling.

good thing the car's been to Weight Watchers. It remains an imposing machine but now it's a fraction lower than its predecessor. This is small change compared to the car's generous > travel. Opt for the 'Dynamic Response' feature and the car will attempt to further minimise pitch and roll – the sworn enemies of high-sided 4x4s.

It gets more interesting when venturing off-road, as the refreshed 'Terrain Response' system can now detect the terrain you're driving on and adjust the throttle, suspension, transmission accordingly.

With a Range Rover it's a given that its powertrain will boast the best technology, and this model is no different. The standard 50-50 torque split is accompanied by a low range transfer gearbox that can be switched even when on the move, while a locking centre differential is there to save you when the going is particularly tricky.

Rejigging the car's ventilation system has led to a considerable increase in its wading depth to a massive 900mm.

Power comes from a trio of engines, all connected to an eight-speed auto

First up is the 510 horsepower supercharged petrol V8 motor. With this realistically destined for oil rich nations, the six and eight-cylinder diesels make more sense. Boasting 258 and 339 horsepower respectively, these engines offer smooth yet willing performance, especially the latter.

That a six-cylinder motor is even offered in such a car is proof that the weight loss programme has been successful.

Of course, the V8 diesel delivers a feeling of invincibility that you can't get anywhere else. And it sure helps when you're towing.

Whisper it, though, because the V6 diesel variant is no slouch. It can cruise and haul the car uphill with surprising vigour, and all with the minimum of noise. For many this might be the sleeper hit of the range.

When considering the overall ownership experience the usual long and tempting list of creature comforts are present, from a business class-like two-seat rear layout to powerful audio and multimedia options plus the usual heated, cooled and massaging seats.

Factor in the welcome inclusion of intelligent safety systems - radar cruise control, blind spot warnings and cameras to help you park – and it's clear that you'll want for little.

Bigger and better yet lighter on its feet, this fourth generation Range Rover demonstrates that you can have it all luxury SUV attributes plus saloon-like agility and sensible running costs.

The car's sleek profile positions it aesthetically above the chunky, flabby and bloated opposition. It's also a car capable of cosseting occupants and taking the most challenging terrain in its stride.

That said, it's equally home on Tarmac, making it a peerless all rounder that rivals will struggle to emulate.

At almost five metres in length it's a

Give your vehicle a winter health check

T'S vitally important that to maintain a car's reliability it is serviced regularly. This is even more important during winter

Regular servicing not only ensures better performance; an efficient engine should also mean lower fuel consumption, cleaner exhaust emissions and, of course, greater reliability.

A good place to start is with a winter health check. Some of these tasks you may be able to do yourself but many garages and service centres offer vehicle health checks at this time of year.

Just a few simple checks go a long way to preventing many breakdowns. In addition, a specific pre-winter service check should ensure that vehicles are in good mechanical and electrical condition to face whatever the season might

Basic checks ideally should include everything from lights and tyres to battery and starter motor.

Tyres should always be carefully checked as worn treads are illegal as well as potentially lethal - for you and innocent bystanders as well as other road users. Tyre pressures, too, should be regularly monitored.

If you decide against the fitting of winter tyres it is important to ensure that you choose an appropriate tyre to see you safely on your way all vear round.

Battery failure is one of the most common causes of a breakdown in the winter months - drained from leaving the lights on as we all do from time to time, or simply passed its useful life. Sluggish starting is a sure sign that your car battery is getting old.

As soon as starting becomes slow it's time to think about buying a new battery. It's possible that the problem might lie with the starter motor, so ask your garage to check that out, along with the fan belt.

Radiators might be sporting leaks or cracks. The garage should check this important component. They'll also test the strength of the antifreeze. Extra glycol-based anti-freeze will boost levels to manufacturers' recommended levels.

Washer systems will also be tested and, of course, before long journeys, water and cleaner should be topped up to ensure optimum visibility whatever the weather.

Hoses, too, should be examined for any cracks or leaks and replaced if there's any doubt that they'll not see you through the winter. Windscreen wiper blades should also be replaced after a year's use. Take advantage of the winter checks that most small garages, main dealers and service centres are offering over the coming months. You don't want to be stranded during your journey, so having your car checked over beforehand could be one of the best decisions you make all year.

NORTH ESSEX PARKING PARTNERSHIP (WYCH ELM, HARLOW, ESSEX) (REVISION TO WAITING, LOADING AND UNLOADING) (REVOKE AND REPLACE WITH LIMITED WAITING) (ON STREET) ORDER 2012

NOTICE OF INTENTION

Colchester Borough Council acting on behalf of the North Essex Parking Partnership in exercise of the delegated powers of the traffic authority Essex County Council granted under an agreement dated 31 March 2011 proposes to make the above order under Sections 1(1), 2(1) to (3), 4(1), 4(2), 32, 35, 45, 46, 49 and 53 and parts III and IV of Schedule 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Essex County Council in the district of Harlow (Wych Elm. Harlow, Essex) (Revision to waiting, loading and unloading) (revoke and replace with limited waiting) (On Street) Order 2012

Effect of the Order

Wych Elm

To amend and introduce parking and waiting restrictions

Description Wych Elm

South side of the exit service road for the Wych Elm estate - from a point 11.6 metres south west of the eastern building line of the Wych Elm multi-storey car park south westwards to a point 52.4 metres south west of the eastern building line of the Wych Elm multi-storey car park - revoke the existing limited waiting bay and replace it with No Waiting 8am-8pm Monday to Saturday restriction

Hawks then lost their sharpness and the hosts' good ball movement at the attacking end helped to give them a 22-10 lead going into the second quarter.

This saw the Hawks get off to a slow start as they struggled for easy baskets and their slow defensive rotations began to leave gaps which Cougars punished with deadly accurate shooting.

Cougars managed to score with greater consistency, but great outside shooting from the visitors saw Norkeliunas, Lenihan and Morris all bag three-pointers from slick ball movement to end the first

The home side had increased their lead in the second quarter and they led 43-25 at the halfway stage.

Trott shows off

ANOTHER brilliant performance in the multi-discipline Omnium Harlow-born Laura Trott win her second gold medal of the UCU World Cup in Glasgow on Sunday.

While the former queen of the track Victoria Pendleton spent her weekend strutting her stuff on Strictly Come Dancing, Trott was dancing her way round the velodrome to add yet another title to her ever-expanding portfolio.

The opening event, the flying lap, an event she won at the Olympics, saw Trott finish fourth.

The points race was next and although unable to take a lap on the field, the 11 points she gained included a win on the sixth sprint and placed Trott in ninth in the overall standings going into the final discipline, the elimination

Wearing the world championship jersey, Trott once again displayed her brilliance in the race dubbed the 'devil take the hindmost' a great crowd pleaser, providing some thrilling and nail-biting racing. The race was neutralised midway through following a nasty crash involving a German rider, but Trott managed to stay clear of the

When it resumed Trott used all her skill to place herself in perfect positions to avoid elimination, sheltering where necessary and finding room to manoeuvre where none seemed to exist.

The final lap saw Trott battle it out with Polish rider Katarzyna Pawlowska, leaving her for dead in a sprint to the line.

The victory moved Trott up to fourth in standings on 14 points going into the final day.

The opening event on Sunday, the individual pursuit, saw Trott set the fastest time of the day, 3:35.90 and then she lost some ground in the scratch race, one of her weakest disciplines, to go into the final event trailing leader Ashlee Ankudinoff of Australia by two leader Ashlee

The scene was set for a tremendous showdown in the two-lap time trial, needing to register a time close to that which won her Olympic gold, to take the title. With the packed crowd urging her on, Trott pulled out all the stops to blast round the Sir Chris Hoy Velodrome.

Displaying great aggression she Displaying great aggression sine established a big lead over Ankudinoff to cross the finish line in a blistering 35.867 seconds—enough for gold by 0.133 of a second profession and profes ond. Russian Tamara Balbolina was third in the overall standings with 26 points.
"I can't believe it, I'm so tired," said Trott. "I don't even know what I'm doing here!

"It's so hard coming back from the Olympics and having to get your head around racing again.

"I only came here because of the home crowd and the support they gave me at the Olympics you just want to give them something back by competing at the home World Cup.

"I was sitting in the pen thinking
"I was absolute-I don't want silver – I was absolutely shattered. I like winning and I love it when the crowd cheers me.'

Trott flew to Australia yesterday (Wednesday) with the rest of the GB team for an endurance camp to get fit for the World Champs.

The striker, who it transpired was playing his last game for Harlow, beat a defender before he rolled the ball low under the keeper from eight yards out.

Brown's header clipped the bar late on as Harlow missed out a fourth.

Chapman was not impressed though. "I don't think we played that well today. I think when we play against the lower teams we don't play as well. These games are fight games. You are playing a team without any discipline or organisation. We play better against the better teams. It was not pretty but we did what we had to do.

"That's two games we have won and six points on the board. This was the first time I've been able to put the same team out for three games in a row. I said to them we are going to improve."

East promise as Rams eye third win

EAST LONDON 8, HARLOW 17 RFU LONDON & SE, DIV THREE NORTH EAST

A REPEAT performance will be needed from the Rams when they host fellow strugglers Old Brentwoods in a must-win clash this Saturday.

Harlow won five days ago at basement side East London, but the former are still second from bottom (11th) and four points behind Brentwoods (9th) in the 12-team division.

The Rams resisted strong pressure at London before the visitors went ahead from a Winger Josh Drake came close to scoring a try and fly-half Danny Smith was just wide with a penalty kick.

On the stroke of half-time,

Harlow went 5-3 ahead when their backs linked well before flanker Oliver James darted over for an unconverted try.

London bounced back with an unconverted 50th-minute try from a good forwards' drive.

The hosts went down to 14 on the hour mark after a lock was sin-binned.

Harlow exploited numerical superiority when prop Danny Stonehouse scooped up a loose ball and powered through two defenders as he touched down an unconverted try.

Harlow led 10-8 and increased their advantage on 70 minutes.

A midfield attack resulted in replacement centre Luke Bowering crashing through to touch down close to the posts. Smith kicked the conversion for a 17-8 lead.

After London missed a penalty, Harlow pressure saw them almost score a fourth try with two minutes left.

They took play right to the East London line, but were penalised for a handling offence in the ruck.

The chance of a bonus point had gone, but Harlow had done enough to win their second match of the season.

Tye Green hosts p tournament

Bv DAVID RIMMER david.rimmer@hertsessexnews.co.uk

WORLD ranked Number One Greg Harlow paid a generous tribute to Tye Green Indoor Bowls Club.

The Harlow-based club hosted an open tournament and former World Champion Harlow was among a top-class field of 64 players.

Harlow told the Star: "I have not been here for a few years but have played here a few times.

"It is a fantastic indoor centre and it is great to see a big club putting [an event like thisl on."

However, the City of Ely player did not steal the limelight as he lost to 23-year-old England international, Devon's Sam Tolchard, who won the four-figure sum awarded to the winner of Sunday's final at the Tillwicks Road hub.

Harlow collected a maximum score of four on the opening end of the first set in the final, but this appeared to wake Tolchard up as he then played supreme bowls to win the

Harlow bounced back to win the second set 8-3 and this took the high-calibre match into a tie-break

Tolchard held his nerve to triumph 2-0 and win the £1,000 prize money.

Tolchard said: "I know it's a cliché but I am 'over the moon!' To beat Greg [Harlow] and Nick [Brett] and so many other top players is superb!

"The standard at this event was so high and a number of people could have won it."

Tolchard's tough passage to the final incorporated five games which included a semi-final victory over Harlow's Ely club team-mate and World ranked Number 10 cards. "It gives me an option. I can push Andy into midfield," said Chapman.

The manager has been impressed with Burns but has been equally delighted with the return from injury of defenders Danny Brown and Donny Barnard which should shore up the Hawks backline. Both have been out for much of the campaign.

Speaking after the 3-0 win against Ilford, the Hawks boss said: "We looked so much more solid as a unit with the two of them there and Andrew Burns is a proper player. We are going to miss him when he goes to Dagenham. John Still (Dagenham manager) wants to put him straight into the first team."

Burns' loan spell ends on December 8, while midfielder Tom Davie will return to Victoria Road on December 1 after the home game against Waltham Abbey.

Chapman completed the signing of 21-year-old centre-half Michael Akande from Ware last week and he came on as a late sub against Ilford.

He has also been pleased with the capture of winger Mitchell Das and believes he can help cover the loss of Jeff Hammond who has signed for Grays Athletic. "Look at the [second] goal [against Ilford]. He was the only one following it up. It was good to see him shine. He put over some great crosses," said Chapman.

The Harlow boss has not ruled out.

Hammond leads exodus as five players quit club

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman faces another rebuilding job after FIVE players quit in the space of a week.

Having won two games on the trot for the first time this season, Harlow Town have been dealt a hammer blow by the mass exodus.

Leading the way is striker Jeff Hammond, who has become the fifth former Hawks player to join Ryman division one north rivals Grays Athletic in little over a year.

He joins Ryan Kirby, Leon Lalite, James Bunn and Luke Marshall at the promotion-chasing side. Hammond (28), who hit four goals last week in the away match against Redbridge and also netted in Saturday's 3-0 victory over Ilford, had been back at the club for about a year after signing from Waltham Forest.

Midfielder Albert Levett has also left Harlow, along with winger Gary Bowes, centre-half Amin Ibrahim and right-back Sam Konway

A Harlow Town FC spokesman said: "Harlow Town FC have announced that both Jeff Hammond and Albert Levett have left the club.
